

Bingo Game

Set up:

1. Print out Bingo game (including game piece action words, numbers and bingo boards)
2. Cut out game piece action words and place words in a hat, envelope or bag
3. Cut out numbers. (Print enough copies to have number markers for each player.)
4. Hand out a set of number markers to each player and one Leaping Legs Bingo Board.

How to Play:

Pick an action word out of the hat and read it to the players (or call out the first letter of the word). If a player has the action word on his board he puts a number marker on the word. Once a player has three squares in a row covered on her board she then has to perform the movements. The number tells the player how many times she has to perform each movement. The first player to do this wins!

space is a free space. The player can perform his favorite action move as many times as he may like (up to 10 times.)

For More Challenging Fun:

For children learning number sequencing you can choose to have them put the number one on the first action word that was called, number two on the second action word, etc. This can also tell them the order in which to perform their movements!

Have the players cover the entire board with number markers and see if they can perform the movements. Not only is it challenging but a great workout!!

Education Facts:

This Up Down and All Around Bingo game addresses literacy and math. The children have to recognize either the letter the action word starts with or the word itself. They must count as they perform the action word as well as put the numbers in order.
